

Big Union Bosses think that she doesn't deserve
the right to a secret ballot.

And they want Congressman
Bill Foster to help them take it away.

A secret ballot is one of the hallmarks of our democracy. But big union bosses are trying to pass legislation that could strip millions of American workers of their right to vote in private in workplace elections when decisions on union representation are made. Their initiative is called "Card Check," and if passed, a worker's vote could be exposed to union bosses and management alike. And since

Bill Foster's campaign last fall received lots of help from big union bosses, you can bet they'll be calling in their IOUs when it comes time to vote for Card Check later this year.

Call Congressman Foster's office and let him know that taking away the rights of workers is un-American and dangerous. And let him know that we won't forget it if he turns his back on us.
